When residents of the Eighth Ward refused to waive their rights that would have permitted construction of the apartment house, the contractor hastily made plans to build outside the town. Burgess William A. Griffith and other civic-minded officials asked the builder to reconsider, at least to postpone definite action until they could find another suitable plot within the borough limits. NOW THAT PLOT HAS BEEN FOUND.

The Federal Housing Agency, under whose guidance the apartment house will be erected, has investigated several sites within the borough limits.. One of the most favorable is a tract of land in the Tenth ward north of Prospect street between Washington and Adams streets.

This section is designated as "residential" on the borough's zoning map, and only single homes may be built there now, according to ENEMIES: Franklin D. Roosevelt periodi- announced during our luncheon together,

It is true that a precedent will be set. It sen't good business to change an ordinance for every whim that arises in a builder's mind. BUT THIS IS AN EMERGENCY.

Pottstown needs housing. Persons are man has handed to them the responsibility being evicted almost daily. Young couples are for keeping the country on an even keel, sick of living with in-laws. Now, in an effort to effect permanent labor peace on a legal and orderly basis, federal, industrial and labor leaders have tackled the problem of staving off another depression. They have become concerned over the growing talk that a crackup is inevitable after a year or two of postwar prosperity.

PROGRAMS: In several seemingly unrelated moves, each of these three great forces which underlie our national economy have framed longrange programs designed to bulwark the current standard of production, consumption and living.

These constitute, perhaps, the most serious and comprehensive approach to this problem in all our economic history. They have come at this time because of fears generated by the accumulation of postwar difficulties, and especially by the wave of past and prospective strikes.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Narrow Squeak in Iran, Troops to Check Voting

By JAMES D. WHITE (Associated Press Staff Writer)

COMEHOW the latest sputtering fuse has been jerked from the international dynamite lying around in Iran.

For the moment, the latest crisis seems to have been weathered. But Iran has been acting like two countries - the south controlled by the Central government, and the semi-autonomous province of Azerbaijan in the north.

Azerbaijan, in turn, has been acting like two different outfits. This has become plain in the present crisis, which drive miles and miles to see beautiful fades only as the Azerbaijan radio says Christmas decorations, and it might be Central troops can come in to supervise a good idea for all civic minded Pottstown elections after it has become plain they

This announcement was made in the name of Communist governmentgeneral Javid. He apparently represents the Azerbaijan moderates who figure a fight would lose them more than it would gain. Yet to be heard from is the fire-breathing leftist faction led by Jafar Pishevari, who earlier defied the entry of Central troops and proclaimed resistance to the last.

Behind this is the background of Iran's oil which brings Anglo-American interests up against Soviet Russian interest in the same thing. But Russia's interest also concerns border security, just won't spend the few cents necessary to as a similar situation in northern Mexico

Superficially, at least, Russia has let the Iranian situation pretty much alone since she somewhat belatedly withdrew her war-time occupation troops from Azerbaijan the past May after the United Nations focused on the question.

This in spite of the Soviet press and radio, which continues lambasting the Tehran government and alleged Anglo-American influence beltind it. The latest thing else, now is plotting to enter an everyday commodity at the social of these blasts - that 40 American bombers had been delivered to Tehran was curtly denied by the State depart-strictly local stuff as far as the Kremlin has been publicly concerned.

It may be significant too that the British, who a month ago were saying that any sudden threat in Iran to British lives and property would still justify unilateral action, this week let it be known they now consider the current crisis a "purely internal affair," meaning it isn't their's - yet.

These are hopeful signs. But Iran continues to be a buffer area between the rivalries of East and West, slippery with its own oil and pent-up with the pressures of an impoverished, backward population groping toward freedom.

One Bryan doctor testified that Engle "is mentally abnormal" and quoted him as saying he was "driven by desires or impulses having sex relationships that were irresistible."

Another doctor described the defendant as a schizophreniac, a person who behaves normally at times and abnormally at others.

Among other witnesses called in by defense attorneys Gilbert Fenton and Frederick Parker, who pleaded Engle innocent by reason of insanity was Miss Mabel Zimmerman who taught the defendant freshman English in the Bryan High school.

She testified that he was virtually without friends, unresponsive, never acted as if he enjoyed anything" and that in her opinion he is "definitely not normal."

It was Miss Zimmerman, whom according to his testimony yesterday, Engle planned to "kill, dissect her body, nail parts of it to fences and buildings, and bring her head to town to place it on top of a flag

Report Reveals Atomic Secret

A footnote to the history of World War II is revealed now in the publication of a paper composed in 1941 by Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg (above) and three other scientists of the University of California, at Berkeley. The paper revealed that plutonium was fissionable with slow as well as fast neutrons and should make an even better atomic bomb than uranium. Suppressed for military security, the paper has now been pubblished, with certain highly secret details omitted.

On another point, Byrnes said ated with the work on the German ence. Molotov said he considered cisions that only the countries which signed the German surrender peace-making sessions here should participate in drafting the

Official Believes Entombed Miner May Be Rescued

GLOBE, Ariz., Dec. 11 (A)-Hope was revived today that John Orekor entombed in a mine-cave-in five days ago, may still be alive.

Ralph Henderson, leasee of the Buckeye Copper mine where the slide occurred, reported that he was in communication with Orekor at 2 p. m., Deputy Sheriff Phil H.

Bell said. Elijah M. York, who had been working with Orekor and who was rescued after being trapped more than 20 hours, previously expressed belief Orekor was kiled by the avalanche of rocks and debris that fell Saturday 400 feet from the mine entrance.

Bell said Henderson reported he stood near the cave-in area and caled out, "John Orekor, if you can hear me, rap three times." The mine operator heard three taps.

To varify the apparent message from the buried miner, Henderson repeated his call in presence of a member of the 100-man rescue party which has been working desperately against time to reach

Bell said Henderson again heard three distinct taps.

Several miners reported hearing a series of taps at 4 p. m. yesterday but rescue leaders discounted them as probably caused by falling rocks. Officials said today, however, that Orekor's condition might not enable him to respond at all times to the frequent efforts to contact him.

Rescue work suffered a setback when attempts to reach the slide area from an old working overhead had to be abandoned as too perilous. Six crack timbermen were assigned to attempt to clear the w y through the mine's main horizontal shaft, and it was hoped to reach the cave-in area itself around midnight.

Bataan Brutalities Necessary, Court Told

TOKYO, Thursday, Dec. 12 (P)-Counsel for Hideki Tojo and 26 codefendants strove to show today that the brutalities of the Bataan death march were necessary to prevent the escape of prisoners and that the marchers starved because the Japanese army ran low on supplies.

The point was brought up in the cross examination of a survivor, Sgt. Donald F. Ingle, Laura, Ill., who had the war crimes tribunal judges listening intently as he detailed earlier the horrors that followed Bataan's fall early in the Pacific war.

Ingle told defense attorneys that the cruelties were as deliberate as the starvation and thirst inflicted upon the prisoners. He said Japanese guards on the march had plenty of food.

Lt. Col. Franklin M. Fliniau, Van Nuys, Calif., now stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., testified he and other U. S. officers were beaten with "iron knuckles and bamboo poles' because they refused to reveal a food and ammunition cache after surrendering on the Philippines island of Panay.

Freight Shifter Hits Trolley; 23 Hurt

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11 (P)-At least 23 persons were injured tonight as a Pennsylvania railroad shifting locomotive and a northbound trolley loaded with homeward bound workers and Christmas shoppers collided at a South Philadelphia crossing.

The injured were taken to Penn-sylvania and Mt. Sinai hospitals by ten police emergency patrol cars. None was reported seriously hurt The locomotive, pulling two freight cars, smashed in the left front end of the trolley, police re-bitter attack on the United States attitude toward future foreign relief came from UNRRA Chief Fiorello H. LaGuardia today as delegates from 48 nations debated whether to continue their hold on the organization into 1947.

LaGuardia Blasts Proposed Change In UNRRA System

Aroused by a statement from the American delegate, the fiery ex-New York mayor in effect accused the United States of seeking to play politics with relief food and

"All my fears have been justified by the statement made by under secretary of state Acheson over the air Sunday and by what you heard this morning."

The United States delegate, C. Tyler Wood, insisted during a speech that members have the right to disregard tentative UNRRA allocations to various countries and instead ship supplies and food originally destined for them to other countries that needed them more.

In his radio address Sunday, Acheson had proclaimed the United States refusal to support any international relief agency to succeed UNRRA and had instead insisted on direct aid from one country to another. He also said UNRRA had "serious faults" and that some countries had received too much relief and others not enough.

LaGuardia contended that the American desire to permit reshuffling of UNRRA's remaining shipments constituted "bread politics, and we all want to avoid that."

Russia, Poland and Yugoslavia joined in supporting LaGuardia's position that all UNRRA programs be completed unchanged. These countries all stand to receive part of the nearly $700,000,000 in supplies that UNRRA has yet to ship.

After LaGuardia's blast, Wood retorted that "Mr. LaGuardia is under a misapprehension if he thinks we (the United States) plan to take unilateral action founded on base political motives."

Asserting there was "nothing diabolical" about the American viewpoint, Wood said that when "real reasons based on need and not on politics" arose for revising current allocations, the United States would abide by the majority decision of UNRRA's key ninenation central committee.

In an obvious reference to the United States policy on future re-Hef abroad, LaGuardia told delegates there was "great danger that after January 1 certain countries will be aided and other not."

"It would be right, just and proper," LaGuardia added, "to hold the programs as they are. If there is any shifting from one country to another there is bound to be a charge that there is discrimination and this will linger for a long time.'

the morning of Nov. 3 at the intersection of Route 113 and Route 73, Skippack, when an automobile he was driving allegedly went through a stop sign and struck the Pebble car which was traveling West on Route 73. State Policeman Raymond Nighan, Collegeville, the only witness heard, said his investigation elicited the fact Dr. Hale had failed to stop, and he believed he failed to see, the stop sign. He added there were two eye witnesses: Willard G. Reiff and Henry H. Allebach, both of Skippack, who coroborated this fact.
